

LIZ GAMBLE

DIRECTOR OF CONSULTING SERVICES

Liz Gamble's broad operational and strategic background in healthcare brings practical, problem-solving experience to CBIZ The Leifer Group. Gamble is particularly skilled at synthesizing data and identifying actionable strategic solutions based on her analysis.

Before working for CBIZ The Leifer Group, Gamble served as the director of planning for Providence Health, a two-hospital system based in Kansas City, Kansas. As planning director, Gamble worked closely with senior management to develop new business initiatives in conjunction with the organizations overall strategic plan. She also assisted with physician recruitment and physician relations and served on the planning council of Providences parent organization, the Sisters of Charity of Leavenworth Health System.

Prior to her role as planning director, Gamble oversaw regional operations for registration, scheduling and benefit verification as the director of access and admissions.

Earlier in her career, Gamble was director of managed care services at Stormont-Vail Healthcare, a 500-bed hospital in Topeka, Kansas. In that role, she was responsible for implementing contracts and overseeing managed care operations within a 115-physician, 19-location multi-specialty clinic.

Gamble earned a Bachelor of Science degree with an emphasis on finance and management from the A.B. Freeman School of Business at Tulane University. She also holds a masters degree in health administration from the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

In her time away from healthcare, Gamble is an avid outdoorswoman who enjoys golf, kayaking, hiking and fishing. She also has a great interest in genealogy, and has traced her ancestry to the 1600s in England.
